CUNARD OFFICE THRONGED BY ANXIOUS RELATIVES OF PASSENGERS ON LUSITANIA

Story of Sinking of Big Transatlantic Liner Is Dramatically Told in Series of Cablegrams Made Public at Line's Local Headquarters.

The local offices of the cunard Steamship Company, at No. 21 State Street, were filled with an anxious throng, including many relatives of passengers on the Lusitania, within a short time after first reports of the sinking of the big liner were re-

They recalled the warning the German Embassy had given by advertisement that the ship might be sunk, and in the absence of any details as to the fate of those on board, they feared there must have been many casualties.

The officials of the Cunard Company did all they could to allay anxiety among the first callers. It was nearly 2 o'clock when the first reliable reports began to come in.

General Agent Sumner admitted, at 2.10 P. M., that there was no doubt De Jasttania was sunk. H calso gave out the following cablegram.

"LIVERPOOL, 1.51 P. M .- Pollowing received by Admiralty: Galley Head, 4.35 P. M .- Several boats, apparently survivors, southeast, nine miles. Greek steamer proceeding to assist."

Mr. Sumner posted the following cablegram at 3. P. M.

"LIVERPOOL, 2.33 P. M .- Queenstown wires Old Head, wires: Targe steamer just arrived in vicinity, apparently rendering assistance. Tugs, patrols, &c., now on the spot taking boats in tow. Motor fishing boat with two of Lusitania's boats bearing probably for Kinsale. Have wired Kinsale agent to render every assistance and to advise us if any boats are towed in

The news of the sinking of the Lassitania, announced by the local office of the Cunard line, was based on cable advices received from the home office of the company in Liverpool. Three despatches were made public by the line. One of the first appromements was

"We received from the Land's End wireless station news of repeated distress calls made by the Lamitania, asking for assistance at once. Big list. Position ten miles south of Kinsale, Subsequently, received telegram from Queenstown that all available craft in the harbor had been despatched to

The second message to the local office read:

"QUEENSTOWN, 4.59 P. M .- Wire begins: 'About twenty boats of all sorts belonging to our line are in vicinity where Lusitania sunk. About fifteen other boats are making for spot to render assitance." A third cable despatch read as follows:

PQUEENSTOWN, May 7,-All available craft in harbor despatched to

The Lusitanta was one of the largest ships in the world and one of the speedlest. It was believed no ordinary submarine could get near enough to sink her, except by a most unusual chance. She was 785 feet long, of 88 feet beam and 60 feet deep. Her gross tonnage was 32,500 and her interest in the matter was concerned. net tennase 9,145. Her master was Capt W. T. Turner. She had a record of better than 25 knots an hour.

"MOST SERIOUS INCIDENT OF WAR," SAYS WASHINGTON, ON HEARING OF DISASTER

WASHINGTON, May 7.-News of the forpedoing of the Lusitania struck official Washington like a bomb. While disposed to await full details before expressing opinions, all Administration officials realized that the incident was probably the most serious Washington has faced since the beginning of the war.

President Wilson was informed of the sinking of the Lusitania and White House officials showed keen anxiety whether any American lives were lost. No comment was made.

Secretary Bryan was at lunch when news of the torpedoing reached him. He hurried at once to the State Department. The Department was much upset. Every effort was being made to establish communication with Consular representatives nearest to the scene of the disaster.

Later in the day it was said at the State Department that the Lusitania and Falaba disasters fell in the same category and undoubtedly would be handled along precisely similar lines, so far as America's official

WHOLE OF HILL 60 CAPTURED, BERLIN WAR OFFICE CLAIMS

Paris Reports Unparalelled Drive Against the ing that there is little danger. British, but Does Not State Results-

Big Losses by Russians.

Complete possession of Hill 60 and the repulse of the British with heavy loss was reported to-day from Berlin.

This and other news from the battlefields of Bussia, Poland and Galicia on the eastern front and from the seacoast of Belgium to the hills of Alsace on the western line further emphasize the unparalleled efforts of the Germans and Austrians to break through the lines at any cost. The suggestion is made that all these moves are intended to influence Italy and the Balkan States and prevent them from entering the war.

The Paris War Office to-day declares there have been violent artillery engagements north of Ypres, but the result is not stated. Paris reports the failure of German attacks in the Argonne.

A despatch from Paris says the Germans are bringing their biggest guns to bear on the British and are literally trying to blow them out of Ypres. German and Austrian reports of a speciacular victory in Galicia are increasingly optimistic. They state that the resistance of the Russians is being broken down steadily and that the Russian third army has been placed in a precarious situation. According to the Austro-German claims, the Russians were pushed back many miles-first across the Dunajec River and later across the Wisloka River, which roughly parallels the Dunajec fifteen miles to the eastward. Petrograd advices concede some losses but say German claims are greatly exaggerated. The Russian War Office announces a victory in a battle near Stry, in the Carpathians, further east than the scene of the present main battle. Berlin puts the Russian losses in Galicia at 40,000. Vienna's estimate is 50,000. The capture of Tarnow, an important railroad centre east of Cracow, is claimed by Vienna. A session of the Italian Parliament was held to-day. A great crowd assembled outside the Palace awaiting a decision as to whether Italy should enter the war. The German School in Rome was closed on orders from Berlin. Forty passenger trains on main Italian lines were reported stopped.

Bombardment of the Turkish defenses on the Dardanelles was continued. Constantinople reports great loss of life among the ailled troops. One battalion is said to have been annihilated. London reports assert that some of the Turkish forts have been

For the first time during this war Constantinople has been attacked. Russian aviators dropped bombs on the city.

LINE AROUND YPRES

BERIAN. May 7 (via wireless to London).—That the German net is closing in on the main British base at Ypres was asserted at the War Office to-day. It was also declared that the Germans not only are again in full possession of Hill 60 but that they have repulsed with heavy loss they have repulsed with heavy loss all of the attempts of the British to BIG GERMAN GUNS retake this position which already has cost thousands of lives to both

The ground that is being gained in the Ypres section is of great strategic importance, as it gives control of the roadways running into the main highway between Ypres and Poperinghe-Hill 60. Following is the text of to-day's report from the War Office.

"All attempts of the English at Vores to wrest away from us Hill 60, which since April 17 has formed the focus of fighting, have fatied. We gained further territory there in the direction of Ypres. During the batles there yesterday the enemy lost seven machine guns, one mine thrower and a large number of rifles with ammunition. "During a continuation of their attack this morning the English again suffered further heavy losses. Between the Meuse and the Moselle we maintained the fortified territory gained in the Mouse hills and southwest and west of the forest of Their guns not only are throwing enormous quantities of explusive shells on the city and the line extending from it to Hill 60, where hard fighting has been in progress since Wednesday morning, but they have mounted extra heavy gues on the wooded hills about Zandvoorde, aix miles southeast of Ypres, and are alternately shelling Ypres and the road to Poperinghe Hill 40 and the country west of it as far as St. Flot.

The Germans continue the use of apply stating gases all along the front. They have brought up additional troops, who have been massed ready to attempt to push their line forward when the artiflery has done its work.

Reports that the Ypres-Bixschoole ine is being rendered untenable by the Germans are characterized as absurd at headquarters. For the purpose of protecting their men the nilled commanders on the north may decide to order withdrawals at certain points, but it is positively asserted that there is not the slightest chance that any drive to the sea const can be successful. The Germans have again attempted to renew their bombardment of Dunkirk but without material success. Many of the inhabitants of the city, however, have fled to the south and the authorities have issued a proclamation announc-

The text of to-day's report from the War Office follows:

"The Germans delivered an attack yesterday at the close of day on Bagatelle, in the Argonne. It resulted in a complete failure.

"On the remainder of the front, particularly to the north of Ypres and in the region of Vauquois, there have been violent artillery engagements."

The news came with a shock to the cotton market. Prices went off from 27 to 30 points. Here again we heard the talk of the impossibility of shipping the staple.

The excitement was heightened by the fact that the news came in the been a very quiet day. Brokers acted quickly and on the floor of the Exchange and in the corridors there were wild-eyed men and messengers in the selling stampede.
